PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

2003-Present: Professor, University of Houston, Graduate School of Social Work, Houston, Texas. My major responsibilities are teaching, research, and community service as a full-time tenured faculty member of the Graduate School of Social Work. My primary teaching areas are research methodology, research application, micro practice and health care issues. My major research areas are infant and maternal health care, adolescent pregnancy and health care, adolescent fatherhood and child abuse prevention. I have been involved in a five-year Federal Grant with the Houston Independent School System (U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (Office of Adolescent Pregnancy) and I have been actively involved in the Teen Health Clinics Baylor College of Medicine for over 20 years in a variety of research studies that examine physical and mental health among pregnant and parenting adolescents. I have recently received funding from the University of Houston, Small Grants program to begin research at the Teen Health Clinics in an Assets Program for at-risk teens. My numerous publications in the area of teen health and recent publications in mental health services in school based and family planning clinics demonstrate my research capabilities. I am also responsible for over 45 students as Director of the Doctoral Program.
