Hey y'all, check this out!

If you look to the left of the small fountain, you'll notice a sidewalk that dead ends onto dirt. This is the only remaining part of Shasta's Den, the name given to Shasta's quarters here on campus. Between 1947 and 1989 the University of Houston had real live cougars on campus! Shasta lived in her own building located next to the fountain here. Imagine walking to class or to your dorm and hearing Shasta roar!

Brazos Bend State Park

Hiking, Biking and Wildlife Viewing

There are almost 25 miles of hiking and biking trails, including an 8-mile equestrian trail system. Consult your park map. Please ride at a safe speed and be considerate of other trail users. The park does not rent bicycles. No off-road vehicles are permitted. Trails marked "foot trail" or "foot traffic only" are not suitable for bicycle traffic.

Elm Lake and 40-Acre Lake trail systems are the best areas to view alligators. Alligators are best viewed in the spring and fall or on mild winter days. They do not like it too hot, too cold or too cloudy and rainy. In the summer months, they are best viewed in the early morning and late evening. Know your Alligator Etiquette found on the park map. Always take plenty of water and your map. Insect repellent is also a good idea. Pets on leash only. Leash can be no longer than six feet. Do not, under any circumstances, allow pets to drink from the lake or enter the water! Bring water for your pet.

The Horseshoe Lake area trails are more forested with less wetland habitat. The Brazos River is best viewed from the Red Buckeye Trail. Birdwatching is excellent throughout the park. Bring your binoculars. 40-Acre, Pilant and Elm lakes are the best areas to view wading birds and waterfowl, with a mix of songbirds and sparrows. Raptors can be viewed anywhere. Hale Lake area is more suitable for forest and songbirds. The Prairie Trails are good for sparrows and other upland birds. The Prairie Trails start at the 40-Acre Lake parking area. Wildflowers can be found throughout the park and are very diverse according to habitat but the best variety can be found on the prairies. Field guides for plants and animals can be purchased at the headquarters and Nature Center gift shops. The Creekfield Lake All-Accessible Trail is a paved half-mile trail. Take the crosswalk from the Nature Center and Observatory parking lot. Wayside exhibits are usable for everyone. Marsh and woodland habitat are viewed from this trail.

Nature Center

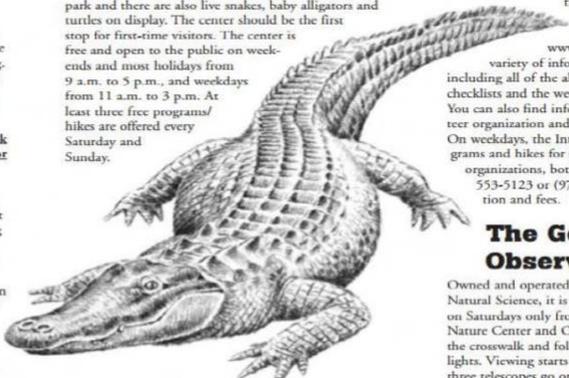

Located near the center of the park, this facility houses exhibits pertaining to the three major ecosystems in the park and there are also live snakes, baby alligators and turtles on display. The center should be the first stop for first-time visitors. The center is free and open to the public on weekends and most holidays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and weekdays from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. At least three free programs/hikes are offered every Saturday and Sunday.

Educational Activities

An Outdoor Guidebook is available in the Nature Center Gift Shop. The Gatorwise Club for kids can be completed in a few hours by taking a guided hike or attending a program and answering a few questions about the ecosystems. The Junior Naturalist Club is a more involved program involving three patches that can be earned. Depending on the patch, it may take a day or more to complete but can be completed at any time. Scavenger hunts and alligator census pages are also available. Visit www.brazosbend.org for a variety of information about the park including all of the above, plus animal and plant checklists and the weekend program schedule. You can also find information about our volunteer organization and how to become a member. On weekdays, the Interpretive staff offers programs and hikes for school groups and other organizations, both on and off site. Call (979) 553-5123 or (979) 553-5124 for information and fees.

The George Observatory

Owned and operated by the Houston Museum of Natural Science, it is open to the general public on Saturdays only from 3-10 p.m. Park in the Nature Center and Observatory parking lot, take the crosswalk and follow the path with the footlights. BAYTOWN: LYNCHBURG FERRY

ONE SERVICE, TWO FERRY BOATS

Lynch's Ferry, a flat-bottomed boat powered by nothing more than a hand-pulled rope, aided a San Jacinto River crossing for 1820s traffic traveling along the primary land route between South Texas and the Mexican border. Constructed and operated by local settler Nathaniel Lynch, who also established nearby Lynchburg (another Lynch operation that included a steam-driven sawmill). Lynch arrived in the Mexican territory as a colonist of Stephen F. Austin's Old Three Hundred. Although Lynch's Ferry wasn't the only waterway conveyance in the area at the time (Lorenzo De Zavalla operated a nearby Buffalo Bayou crossing), it garnered special attention during the Runaway Scrape as colonists who were revolting against Mexican rule used it in their escape route as they fled the oncoming Mexican Army. Lynch, a businessman, was accused of overcharging for the ferry service but after his death fees were set by the Harris County Commissioners Court until the service came under Harris County stewardship in 1888. Since then, the ferry service has been free. Today, two ferry boats provide Lynchburg Ferry service, carrying vehicles and pedestrians across a landscape dramatically transformed by the international shipping and petrochemical industries. The north ferry landing is located at the end of the Crosby-Lynchburg Road just south of Lynchburg. A short seven to ten minute ride on either ferryboats, the William P. Hobby or the Ross S. Sterling, will deposit you and your vehicle to the southern ferry landing and San Jacinto State Park.

Address: 794 Sorella Court, Suite 127, Houston, TX 77024

Website: <https://worldofescapes.com/houston/quests/the-escape-game-houston-gold-rush>

Escape rooms can be described as interactive adventure games during which a set of players (usually between 2 and 8 people) are locked in a room and have to solve riddles and use a series of clues in order to break out. To put it simply, escape rooms are very much like a computer game except that they take place in real life. Participants have to act quickly as the time given to “solve the case” is limited (somewhere between 30 and 90 minutes).

Ever wish you were inside a video game, a book, or a movie to solve mysteries yourself? Well, that has become possible with the emergence of a truly exhilarating and mind-blowing kind of entertainment: escape rooms. Stemming from video games, escape rooms appeared in Japan and China in 2007 and since then have gained an audience in the USA and Europe. Available in over 60 countries, they are attracting more and more people every day. But what exactly are escape rooms and what is so enticing about them?

Below the text are two images: one showing a man and a woman in a dark room with glowing blue light trails, and another showing a group of people in a room with a large map on the wall. To the right of the second image is a card for "The Heist" by The Escape Game, with a rating of 5 stars and a "Book Now" button.
